Two-Chair Readiness - Review journal

Review an attempt at two-chair readiness and choose what to keep, change, or leave aside.

Fictional example: Rae is curious about a volunteer role but does not want emotionally intense enactment.

Use an ordinary or fictional example, with a clinician when appropriate. Experiential dialogue requires collaboration and an exit route.

Practice task

With a trained clinician, plan a brief dialogue about an ordinary decision using two cards or chairs; agree on a stop cue and an observing alternative before any practice.

1. What I tried, or what happened in the fictional example:

2. What I noticed before, during, and after; what remains uncertain:

3. What helped, did not help, or was outside my control:

4. What conditions would make this experiment a genuine choice? My optional adjustment or support request:

Scope and adaptation

Keep experiments collaborative and low intensity. Chair-based or unfinished-business exploration belongs with appropriately trained clinicians after assessment, with a stop cue and an observing alternative. Do not interpret symbols, recover memories, force body focus, or use cathartic confrontation.
