Permission to Observe

Trauma Stabilization | 30 minutes | 3-12 participants | Adults with appropriate facilitation

Purpose

Practice welcoming someone who chooses observation rather than participation.

Materials: Paper or a printable handout, Pens or an accessible writing alternative, Optional blank cards or simple drawing materials

Invite and agree - 3 minutes

Name the purpose and the right to pass, observe, write, or use fiction. Agree that people share only their own experiences and do not promise absolute group confidentiality.

Introduce the example - 3 minutes

A newcomer does not want to speak in a circle. Ask what is known and what is still a guess.

Practice: Skills rehearsal - 17 minutes

Practice welcoming someone who chooses observation rather than participation. Model one short example. Invite a speaker, listener, or observer role; rehearse a low-stakes version and switch roles only by choice.

Reflect together - 4 minutes

What words communicate genuine permission? Ask what fit, what did not fit, and what would make the exercise more accessible. Do not interpret another person's response.

Choose a next step - 3 minutes

Invite one optional action, support request, or question to carry forward. Passing is a valid closing response. Confirm how to seek appropriate support outside the activity.

Facilitator fit and boundaries

Present-focused skills only. No trauma narratives, exposure, surprise touch, or requests to revisit traumatic events.

Offer observation, private writing, or a fictional example. Adapt instructions and group size to access needs. No client responses are collected by this page.
