Support and Autonomy Balance

Trauma Stabilization | 30 minutes | 3-12 participants | Adults with appropriate facilitation

Purpose

Explore how support can offer options rather than control or surveillance.

Materials: Paper or a printable handout, Pens or an accessible writing alternative, Optional blank cards or simple drawing materials

Invite and agree - 3 minutes

Name the purpose and the right to pass, observe, write, or use fiction. Agree that people share only their own experiences and do not promise absolute group confidentiality.

Introduce the example - 3 minutes

A helper wants constant updates from someone. Ask what is known and what is still a guess.

Practice: Guided discussion - 17 minutes

Explore how support can offer options rather than control or surveillance. Offer a quiet thinking minute before optional paired or whole-group discussion. Reflect differences without requiring agreement.

Reflect together - 4 minutes

What support has the person agreed to? Ask what fit, what did not fit, and what would make the exercise more accessible. Do not interpret another person's response.

Choose a next step - 3 minutes

Invite one optional action, support request, or question to carry forward. Passing is a valid closing response. Confirm how to seek appropriate support outside the activity.

Facilitator fit and boundaries

Present-focused skills only. No trauma narratives, exposure, surprise touch, or requests to revisit traumatic events.

Offer observation, private writing, or a fictional example. Adapt instructions and group size to access needs. No client responses are collected by this page.
