Trust through Observable Actions - Clinician dialogue

Guide a collaborative conversation about trust through observable actions while checking fit and participant choice.

Mental health professionals | 15 minutes

Fictional example: Quinn agrees to communicate a relevant plan change at an agreed time.

Invite and obtain permission

Offer: "Would it be useful to explore trust through observable actions using an ordinary or fictional example? We can adapt it, observe, or stop." Ask what the person wants from the conversation.

Elicit before teaching

Ask: "How does this show up, if at all, in your own words?" Offer this idea tentatively: Trust cannot be demanded and may be influenced by consistent behavior over time. Ask what fits and what does not.

Guide the task

Identify one realistic commitment, how it can be observed without surveillance, and what happens if it is not kept. Ask for permission before giving an example. Use this fictional illustration if useful: Quinn agrees to communicate a relevant plan change at an agreed time.

Reflect and check accuracy

Reflect only what was offered: "I heard you describe ___. What did I miss?" Ask: What action can be offered without claiming it guarantees trust? Avoid assigning motives or interpreting silence as agreement.

Respond to a mismatch

If the person rejects the frame, say: "Thank you for correcting it. What would be more useful?" Return to their language or choose a different approach.

Close with agency

Ask which observation, question, or support request the person wants to keep. Confirm a manageable ending and appropriate follow-up; do not turn a tentative possibility into a homework obligation.

Reflection

What would tell me to adapt, stop, or seek supervision?

Scope and adaptation

Joint work requires private assessment of coercion, violence, fear, and retaliation. Do not require graphic disclosure, passwords, surveillance, reconciliation, forgiveness, or sexual contact. Accountability for deception is not assigned to the hurt partner. Support individual agency and appropriate medical, legal, or safety consultation without using this worksheet as professional advice.
