Trigger Context Detective - Practice worksheet

Map an ordinary high-risk situation through setting, thoughts, feelings, body cues, and available choices.

Adults; supported use as appropriate | 15 minutes

Fictional example: Jordan notices stronger urges after a stressful shift and an empty evening.

Use an ordinary or fictional example, with a clinician when appropriate. A cue is part of a wider sequence rather than proof that use is inevitable.

Practice task

Map an ordinary high-risk situation through setting, thoughts, feelings, body cues, and available choices.

1. My chosen or fictional situation, and what I know about it:

2. My response to the practice task above:

3. Where could support enter before the urge becomes harder to manage?

4. An optional next step, support, adaptation, or reason to stop:

Scope and adaptation

Adapt to individualized assessment and the person's chosen recovery goals. Worksheets do not manage intoxication, overdose, or withdrawal. Abrupt cessation of alcohol or benzodiazepines can be dangerous: seek medical guidance rather than using a worksheet to stop or taper. Follow existing emergency and overdose-prevention plans; medication choices belong with qualified prescribers.
